Vienna, September 1. N. S. The Hungarian Garrison that was in Neytra, has been conducted to Neuhausel; which Place, 'tis thought, is by this time invested by the Imperial Army. In the mean while Marshal Heister has pass'd the Danube with some Regiments, to dislodge the Malecontents who had posted themselves in the Island of Raab, and to drive them out of all the other strong Holds they are possess'd of on this side the Danube; by which means he will deliver the Frontiers of Austria and Stiria from any further Incursions of the Enemy. General Oskai, one of the Leaders of the Malecontents, has submitted himself and his whole Regiment to the Emperor; Count Palfi, Ban of Croatia, having procur'd him the Emperor's Pardon. He has likewise deliver'd up a Castle belonging to Count Palfi, which the Hungarians were Masters of, and which commands a Pass leading to several of the Towns of Upper Hungary that lye among the Mountains. Our Advices from Presburg tell us, that Anthony Esterhasi and Bezeredi, two other Hungarian Leaders, are now actually treating with the Imperial Generals on Terms for themselves, and the Troops under their Command; and that the Conditions of the Treaty are in a manner settled, they being assured of the Emperor's Pardon, and of being constantly imploy'd in the Imperial Army. Some Advices say, that Marshal Heister is march'd to Papa, to assure those Hungarian Generals of a punctual Performance of the Conditions stipulated by them, and to receive them and their Troops into the Emperor's Service. The Pope has written a Letter to one of the Bishops of Hungary, to be communicated to others of the same Order, wherein his Holiness tells him, that the Arms of the Confederate Princes, which have seem'd hitherto to be employ'd only about things Temporal, are now visibly directed to the Destruction of the Roman Religion, and of the See of Rome; and therefore he requires the said Bishop, together with his Brethren, as true and faithful Sons of the Church, to consider seriously the present Juncture of Affairs, and consult about the most proper Means that may be suggested for the Safety and Preservation of it. We are inform'd that the Pope has made the same unjust Representations of his present Disputes with the Imperial Court in several Parts of Europe, as hoping by this Artifice to inflame the Romish Clergy, and alarm the Roman Catholick Princes with the Apprehensions of a Religious War.

Brussels, Septemb. 13. N. S. Lieutenant-General Pascale is return'd hither with his Detachment of the Garrison of this Place, having left the Convoy of Cannon and Ammunition, which set forward from hence on the 8th, near Audenarde on the 11th, under an Escorte of 30 Squadrons and 5 Battalions, commanded by the Earl of Albemarle. The Enemy had detach'd a like number of Squadrons, and all the Garrison of Ghent, with a design to intercept this Convoy; but though they appear'd on both sides of the Road during all the time of our March from Grammont to Audenarde, they did not think fit to attack us.

From the Camp at Fretin, September 13. N. S. On Tuesday the 11th in the Morning, his Grace the Duke of Marlborough received an account that the Enemy were marching nearer to us; and had further advice about Noon, that some of their Troops began to appear in the Plains before the Village of Entiers, near the Center of our Retrenchments, in which his Grace had order'd two Brigades of Foot to be posted, under the Command of Brigadier Evans and Brigadier Wertmuller: Our Army was thereupon immediately order'd to their Arms, and the Prince of Savoy join'd us with the same number of Squadrons and Battalions that he brought the 5th from the Siege. About 4 in the Afternoon the Enemy began to fire from a Battery of Cannon they had raised against the said Village, which they continu'd 'till it was dark, and began again yesterday about 7 in the Morning. His Grace, Prince Eugene, and Monsieur d'Auverquerque continued in the Field all Night; and the Troops, which lay upon their Arms, were form'd again in order of Battel: The Enemies chief design seem'd to be to force that Village, for the Security of which such care had been taken, that their Fire of Tuesday, and greatest part of yesterday, has not at all prejudic'd the Works thrown up for its defence, and which were augmented last Night. We do not reckon above 40 or 50 Men kill'd or wounded. His Grace the Duke of Marlborough order'd the Army, towards the Evening, to encamp in such a manner, that we shall be immediately ready to receive the Enemy, if they make any further Attempt. They made a Movement last Night, and extended their Left to Seclin, and have their Right upon the Marque: They have not thought fit to give us any disturbance to day, either by their Motions or Cannon. The Earl of Albemarle join'd us yesterday Noon with his Detachment, having left the Convoy safe at Menin. We have an account from the French Army, that Monsieur Chamillard arriv'd there on Monday last, and, 'tis said, return'd back to Court yesterday. The Prince of Savoy went back this Morning with his Troops to the Siege.

Hague, September 13. N. S. This Morning the Queen of Portugal embark'd at Rotterdam on the Peregrine Yacht, in order to sail for Portsmouth if the Wind continues fair. We have Letters from France of the 10th, with Advice that the French Court had receiv'd Intelligence, that Fenestrelles was surrender'd to the Duke of Savoy
